Prime Time for M&A in Economic Transformation; Analysis of Investment Opportunities in M&A Chinese economy has entered the most crucial transformation period since the adoption of the reform and opening-up policy. The transformation efficiency for economic transformation is likely deciding the economic trend in a long term. The Central Economic Working Conference 2013 specifies the economic policy of ensuring the primary role of stable growth in the short run and the secondary role of structural adjustment in the long run. Of the six economic issues, three have particularly huge impact on industry, which are consolidating agricultural basis, accelerating the adjustment of industrial structure and promoting urbanization.
