Baidu Controls Incubation Project “Dianxin OS” of Innovation Works

Tech.sina.com.cn , Feb. 19, 2013

Innovation Works’ first investment project “Dianxin” has been controlled by Baidu.

The cooperation between both parties was similar to Baidu’s investments in Qunar.com and Iqiyi.com: Baidu holds a controlling stake, the board of directors and framework of Dianxin will be reorganized, but Dianxin remains independent running. The investment amount of Baidu has been received before the Spring Festival, and relevant adjustment of Dianxin is predicted to be completed by the end of March. It is understood that Dianxin is stepping up its optimizing and upgrading of products in order to enhance its competitiveness in the mobile Internet market.

CSDN Secures US$10M Investment and Plans IPO in 2015-2016

Tech.qq.com , Feb. 18, 2013

Domestic developer community CSDN obtained more than US$10M investment at the end of last year. The investment was made by three investors, including CBC Capital and an Internet giant who invested in the name of an individual. The money will become available by the end of this March. Tencent Technology called CSDN's founder Jiang Tao before the Spring Festival, but the latter made no comment.

People close to the situation said that CSDN mainly has several business segments, training, social based recruitment and holding meetings. CSDN follows the example of LinkedIn. It plans to make an IPO in 2015 and 2016.
