

SECOND DIVISION

[G.R. No. 197590, November 24, 2014]

BUREAU OF INTERNAL REVENUE, AS REPRESENTED BY THE COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL REVENUE, PETITIONER, VS. COURT OF APPEALS, SPOUSES ANTONIO VILLAN MANLY, AND RUBY ONG MANLY, RESPONDENTS.

D E C I S I O N

DEL CASTILLO, J.:

There is grave abuse of discretion when the determination of probable cause is exercised in an arbitrary or despotic manner, due to passion or personal hostility, so patent and gross as to amount to an evasion of a positive duty or a virtual refusal to perform a duty enjoined by law.^[1]

This Petition for Certiorari^[2] under Rule 65 of the Rules of Court assails the Decision^[3] dated October 28, 2010 and the Resolution^[4] dated May 10, 2011 of the Court of Appeals (CA) in CA-G.R. SP No. 112479.

Factual Antecedents

Respondent Antonio Villan Manly (Antonio) is a stockholder and the Executive Vice-President of Standard Realty Corporation, a family-owned corporation.^[5] He is also engaged in rental business.^[6] His spouse, respondent Ruby Ong Manly, is a housewife.^[7]

On April 27, 2005, petitioner Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) issued Letter of Authority No. 2001 00012387^[8] authorizing its revenue officers to investigate respondent spouses' internal revenue tax liabilities for taxable year 2003 and prior years.

On June 6, 2005, petitioner issued a letter^[9] to respondent spouses requiring them to submit documentary evidence to substantiate the source of their cash purchase of a 256-square meter log cabin in Tagaytay City worth P17,511,010.00. Respondent spouses, however, failed to comply with the letter.^[10]

On June 23, 2005, the revenue officers executed a Joint Affidavit^[11] alleging that respondent Antonio's reported or declared annual income for the taxable years 1998-2003 are as follows:

	Taxable Compensation Income	Net Profit Rental Business (1169- 73 G. Masangkay St., Tondo, Manila	Total sources of Funds	Tax Due/paid	CASH
1998	[P]133,532.36	[P] 191,915.10	[P] 325,447.46	[P]55,834.00	[P] 269,613.46
1999	142,550.50	260,961.78	403,512.28	79,254.00	324,258.28
2000	141,450.00	213,740.67	355,190.67	64,757.21	290,433.46
2001	151,500.00	233,396.62	384,896.62	73,669.00	311,227.62
2002	148,500.00	186,106.62	334,606.62	58,581.00	276,025.62
2003	148,100.00	152,817.53	300,917.93	48,729.00	252,188.93
[Total]	P865,633.26	P1,238,938.32	P2,104,571.58	P380,824.21	P1,723,747.37 ^[12]

and that despite his modest income for the said years, respondent spouses were able to purchase in cash the following properties:

- 1) a luxurious vacation house in Tagaytay City valued at P17,511,010.00^[13] in the year 2000, evidenced by a Deed of Absolute Sale^[14] dated October 24, 2000;
- 2) a Toyota RAV4 for P1,350,000.00 in the year 2001, evidenced by a Sales Invoice^[15] dated June 28, 2001; and
- 3) a Toyota Prado for P2,000,000.00 in 2003, evidenced by a Deed of Sale^[16] dated July 9, 2003.^[17]

Since respondent spouses failed to show the source of their cash purchases, the revenue officers concluded that respondent Antonio's Income Tax Returns (ITRs) for taxable years 2000, 2001, and 2003 were underdeclared.^[18] And since the underdeclaration exceeded 30% of the reported or declared income, it was considered a prima facie evidence of fraud with intent to evade the payment of proper taxes due to the government.^[19] The revenue officers, thus, recommended the filing of criminal cases against respondent spouses for failing to supply correct and accurate information in their ITRs for the years 2000, 2001, and 2003, punishable under Sections 254^[20] and 255^[21] in relation to Section 248(B)^[22] of Republic Act No. 8424 or the "Tax Reform Act of 1997," hereinafter referred to as the National Internal Revenue Code (NIRC).^[23]

Respondent spouses, in their Joint Counter-Affidavit,^[24] denied the accusations hurled against them and alleged that they used their accumulated savings from their earnings for the past 24 years in purchasing the properties.^[25] They also contended that the criminal complaint should be dismissed because petitioner failed to issue a deficiency assessment against them.^[26]

In response, the revenue officers executed a Joint Reply-Affidavit.^[27] Respondent spouses, in turn, executed a Joint Rejoinder-Affidavit.^[28]

Ruling of the State Prosecutor

On August 31, 2006, State Prosecutor Ma. Cristina A. Montero-Barot issued a Resolution^[29] in I.S. No. 2005-573 recommending the filing of criminal charges^[30] against respondent spouses, to wit:

WHEREFORE, premises considered, it is respectfully recommended that [respondent] spouses ANTONIO VILLAN MANLY and RUBY ONG MANLY be charged [with] the following:

- (1) Three (3) counts of Violation of Section 254 – Attempt to Evade or Defeat Tax of the NIRC for taxable years 2000, 2001, and 2003;
- (2) Three (3) counts for Violation of Section 255 of the NIRC – Failure to Supply Correct and Accurate Information for taxable years 2000, 2001 and 2003;
- (3) Three counts of Violation of Section 255 of the NIRC – Failure to Pay, as a consequence of [respondent spouses'] failure to supply correct and accurate information on their tax returns for taxable years 2000, 2001, and 2003.^[31]

Respondent spouses moved for reconsideration^[32] but the State Prosecutor denied the same in a Resolution^[33] dated November 29, 2007.

Ruling of the Secretary of Justice

On appeal to the Secretary of Justice via a Petition for Review,^[34] Acting Justice Secretary Agnes VST Devanadera (Devanadera) reversed the Resolution of the State Prosecutor. She found no willful failure to pay or attempt to evade or defeat the tax on the part of respondent spouses as petitioner allegedly failed to specify the amount of tax due and the likely source of income from which the same was based.^[35] She also pointed out petitioner's failure to issue a deficiency tax assessment against respondent spouses which is a prerequisite to the filing of a criminal case for tax evasion.^[36] The dispositive portion of the Resolution^[37] dated July 27, 2009 reads:

WHEREFORE, the assailed Resolution is hereby REVERSED and SET ASIDE. The Chief State Prosecutor is hereby directed to withdraw the Information filed against [respondent spouses] Antonio Villan Manly and Ruby Ong Manly, if one has been filed, and report the action taken thereon within ten (10) days from receipt hereto.

SO ORDERED.^[38]

Petitioner sought reconsideration^[39] but Acting Justice Secretary Devanadera denied the same in a Resolution^[40] dated November 5, 2009.

Ruling of the Court of Appeals

Unfazed, petitioner filed a Petition for Certiorari^[41] with the CA imputing grave abuse of discretion on the part of Acting Justice Secretary Devanadera in finding no probable cause to indict respondent spouses for willful attempt to evade or defeat tax and willful failure to supply correct and accurate information for taxable years 2000, 2001 and 2003.

On October 28, 2010, the CA rendered the assailed Decision^[42] dismissing the Petition for Certiorari. Although it disagreed that an assessment is a condition sine qua non in filing a criminal case for tax evasion, the CA, nevertheless, ruled that there was no probable cause to charge respondent spouses as petitioner allegedly failed to state their exact tax liability and to show sufficient proof of their likely source of income.^[43] The CA further said that before one could be prosecuted for tax evasion, the fact that a tax is due must first be proved.^[44] Thus:

IN LIGHT OF ALL THE FOREGOING, the instant petition is hereby DENIED, and the assailed Resolution of the Secretary of Justice dated July 27, 2009 dismissing I.S. No. 2005-573 against private respondents, AFFIRMED. However, the dismissal of the instant case is without prejudice to the refiling by the BIR of a complaint sufficient in form and substance before the appropriate tribunal.

SO ORDERED.^[45]

The CA likewise denied petitioner's Motion for Reconsideration^[46] in its Resolution^[47] dated May 10, 2011.

Issues

Hence, petitioner filed the instant Petition contending that the CA committed grave abuse of discretion amounting to lack or excess of jurisdiction in holding that:

I. A CATEGORICAL FINDING OF THE EXACT AMOUNT OF TAX DUE FROM THE PRIVATE RESPONDENT SHOULD BE SPECIFICALLY ALLEGED [AND THAT] SINCE THE BIR FAILED TO MAKE SUCH FINDINGS THEY CONSEQUENTLY FAILED TO BUILD A CASE FOR TAX EVASION AGAINST [RESPONDENT SPOUSES] DESPITE THE WELL ESTABLISHED DOCTRINE THAT IN TAX EVASION CASES, A PRECISE COMPUTATION OF THE [TAX] DUE IS NOT NECESSARY.

II. THE BIR FAILED TO SHOW SUFFICIENT PROOF OF A LIKELY SOURCE OF [RESPONDENT SPOUSES'] INCOME DESPITE THE FACT THAT THE BIR WAS SUFFICIENTLY ABLE TO SHOW PROOF OF SUCH INCOME.^[48]

Petitioner's Arguments

Petitioner imputes grave abuse of discretion on the part of the CA in affirming the dismissal of the criminal cases against respondent spouses. Petitioner contends that in filing a criminal case for tax evasion, a prior computation or assessment of tax is not required because the crime is complete when the violator knowingly and willfully filed a fraudulent return with intent to evade a part or all of the tax.^[49] In this case, an analysis of respondent spouses' income and expenditure shows that their cash expenditure is grossly disproportionate to their reported or declared income, leading petitioner to believe that they underdeclared their income.^[50] In computing the unreported or undeclared income, which was likely sourced from respondent Antonio's rental business,^[51] petitioner used the expenditure method of reconstructing income, a method used to determine a taxpayer's income tax liability when his records are inadequate or inaccurate.^[52] And since respondent spouses failed to explain the alleged unreported or undeclared income, petitioner asserts that criminal charges for tax evasion should be filed against them.

Respondent spouses' Arguments

Respondent spouses, on the other hand, argue that the instant Petition should be dismissed as petitioner availed of the wrong remedy in filing a Petition for Certiorari under Rule 65 of the Rules of Court.^[53] And even if the Petition is given due course, the same should still be dismissed because no grave abuse of discretion can be attributed to the CA.^[54] They maintain that petitioner miserably failed to prove that a tax is actually due.^[55] Neither was it able to show the source of the alleged unreported or undeclared income as required by Revenue Memorandum Order No. 15-95, Guidelines and Investigative Procedures in the Development of Tax Fraud Cases for Internal Revenue Officers.^[56] As to the method used by petitioner, they claim that it completely ignored their lifetime savings because it was limited to the years 1998-2003.^[57]

Our Ruling

The Petition is meritorious.

Before discussing the merits of this case, we shall first discuss the procedural matter raised by respondent spouses that petitioner availed of the wrong remedy in filing a Petition for Certiorari under Rule 65 of the Rules of Court, instead of a Petition for Review on Certiorari under Rule 45.

Indeed, the remedy of a party aggrieved by a decision, final order, or resolution of the CA is to file a Petition for Review on Certiorari under Rule 45 of the Rules of Court, which is a continuation of the appellate process over the original case.^[58] And as a rule, if the remedy of an appeal is available, an action for certiorari under Rule 65 of the Rules of Court, which is an original or independent action based on grave abuse of discretion amounting to lack or excess of jurisdiction, will not prosper^[59] because it is not a substitute for a lost appeal.^[60]

There are, however, exceptions to this rule, to wit: 1) when public welfare and the advancement of public policy dictate; 2) when the broader interest of justice so requires; 3) when the writs issued are null and void; 4) when the questioned order amounts to an oppressive exercise of judicial authority; 5) when, for persuasive reasons, the rules may be relaxed to relieve a litigant of an injustice not commensurate with his failure to comply with the prescribed procedure; 6) when the judgment or order is attended by grave abuse of discretion; or 7) in other meritorious cases.^[61]

In this case, after considering the arguments raised by the parties, we find that there is reason to give due course to the instant Petition for Certiorari as petitioner was able to convincingly show that the CA committed grave abuse of discretion when it affirmed the dismissal of the criminal charges against respondent spouses despite the fact that there is probable cause to indict them.

Although the Court has consistently adopted the policy of non-interference in the conduct and determination of probable cause,^[62] which is exclusively within the competence of the Executive Department, through the Secretary of Justice,^[63] judicial intrusion, in the form of judicial review, is allowed when there is proof that the Executive Department gravely abused its discretion in making its determination and in arriving at the conclusion it reached.^[64]

Grave abuse of discretion is defined as a capricious and whimsical exercise of judgment tantamount to lack or excess of jurisdiction, a blatant abuse of authority so grave and so severe as to deprive the court of its very power to dispense justice, or an exercise of power in an arbitrary and despotic manner, due to passion, prejudice or personal hostility, so patent and gross as to amount to an evasion or to a unilateral refusal to perform the duty enjoined or to act in contemplation of the law.^[65] Such is the situation in this case.

Having resolved the foregoing procedural matter, we shall now proceed to determine the main issue in this case.

Sections 254 and 255 of the NIRC pertinently provide:

SEC. 254. Attempt to Evade or Defeat Tax. – Any person who willfully attempts in any manner to evade or defeat any tax imposed under this Code or the payment thereof shall, in addition to other penalties provided by law, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than Thirty thousand pesos (P30,000.00) but not more than One hundred thousand pesos (P100,000.00) and suffer imprisonment of not less than two (2) years but not more than four (4) years: Provided, That the conviction or acquittal obtained under this Section shall not be a bar to the filing of a civil suit for the collection of taxes.

SEC. 255. Failure to File Return, Supply Correct and Accurate Information, Pay Tax, Withhold and Remit Tax and Refund Excess Taxes Withheld on Compensation. – Any person required under this Code or by rules and regulations promulgated thereunder to pay any tax, make a return, keep any record, or supply correct and accurate information, who willfully fails to pay such tax, make such return, keep such record, or supply such correct and accurate information, or withhold or remit taxes withheld, or refund excess taxes withheld on compensation at the time or times required by law or rules and regulations shall, in addition to other penalties provided by law, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not less than Ten thousand pesos (P10,000.00) and suffer imprisonment of not less than one (1) year but not more than ten (10) years.

In Ungab v. Judge Cusi, Jr.,^[66] we ruled that tax evasion is deemed complete when the violator has knowingly and willfully filed a fraudulent return with intent to evade and defeat a part or all of the tax.^[67] Corollarily, an assessment of the tax deficiency is not required in a criminal prosecution for tax evasion.^[68] However, in Commissioner of Internal Revenue v. Court of Appeals,^[69] we clarified that although a deficiency assessment is not necessary, the fact that a tax is due must first be proved before one can be prosecuted for tax evasion.^[70]

In the case of income, for it to be taxable, there must be a gain realized or received by the taxpayer, which is not excluded by law or treaty from taxation.^[71] The government is allowed to resort to all evidence or resources available to determine a taxpayer's income and to use methods to reconstruct his income.^[72] A method commonly used by the government is the expenditure method, which is a method of reconstructing a taxpayer's income by deducting the aggregate yearly expenditures from the declared yearly income.^[73] The theory of this method is that when the amount of the money that a taxpayer spends during a given year exceeds his reported or declared income and the source of such money is unexplained, it may be inferred that such expenditures represent unreported or undeclared income.^[74]

In the case at bar, petitioner used this method to determine respondent spouses' tax liability. Petitioner deducted respondent spouses' major cash acquisitions from their available funds. Thus:

And since the underdeclaration is more than 30% of respondent spouses' reported or declared income, which under Section 248(B) of the NIRC constitutes as prima facie evidence of false or fraudulent return, petitioner recommended the filing of criminal cases against respondent spouses under Sections 254 and 255, in relation to Section 248(B) of the NIRC.

The CA, however, found no probable cause to indict respondent spouses for tax evasion. It agreed with Acting Justice Secretary Devanadera that petitioner failed to make "a categorical finding of the exact amount of tax due from [respondent spouses]" and "to show sufficient proof of a likely source of [respondent spouses'] income that enabled them to purchase the real and personal properties adverted to x x x." [78]

We find otherwise.

The amount of tax due from respondent spouses was specifically alleged in the Complaint-Affidavit. [79] The computation, as well as the method used in determining the tax liability, was also clearly explained. The revenue officers likewise showed that the underdeclaration exceeded 30% of the reported or declared income.

The revenue officers also identified the likely source of the unreported or undeclared income in their Reply-Affidavit. The pertinent portion reads:

7. x x x x

[Respondent spouses] are into rental business and the net profit for six (6) years before tax summed only to P1,238,938.32 (an average of more or less Php200,000.00 annually). Due to such refusal made by the respondent,
