

SECOND DIVISION

[G.R. NO. 143384, February 04, 2005]

DR. ERNESTO I. MAQUILING, PETITIONER, VS. PHILIPPINE TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY, INC., RESPONDENT.

D E C I S I O N

TINGA, J.:

Before this Court is a Petition for Review on Certiorari of the Decision^[1] of the Court of Appeals dated 28 March 2000 and its Resolution dated 22 May 2000, which reversed the decision of the National Labor Relations Commission (NLRC) dated 15 December 1997^[2] and that of the Labor Arbiter dated 16 September 1993,^[3] which both found the dismissal from service of Dr. Ernesto I. Maquiling (Dr. Maquiling) illegal.

The factual antecedents are as follows:

On 16 April 1968, petitioner Dr. Maquiling was employed by respondent Philippine Tuberculosis Society, Inc. (PTS). On 8 June 1991, Dr. Maquiling, then earning a monthly salary of thirteen thousand nine hundred pesos (P13,900.00) was dismissed from service as Deputy Executive Director after serving PTS for twenty-three (23) years. Dr. Maquiling filed a complaint against PTS for reinstatement or, in the alternative, for payment of full backwages and separation pay in accordance with Article 279 of the Labor Code, as well as moral damages in the amount of five hundred thousand pesos (P500,000.00) and exemplary damages in the amount of one hundred thousand pesos (P100,000.00).^[4]

The complaint was assigned to Labor Arbiter Salimathar V. Nambi. After PTS failed to appear despite having requested for several postponements, Dr. Maquiling was allowed to present his evidence ex parte consisting of his testimony on direct examination and documentary proof. On 31 August 1992, Dr. Maquiling moved for submission of the case for resolution, which motion was granted.^[5]

The records disclose that Dr. Maquiling received a memo dated 2 April 1991 from the PTS OIC-Executive Director Andres B. Soriano (Soriano) directing him to submit within five (5) days from notice a written explanation on the following matters:

1. The delayed GSIS remittances;
2. The reported deficit of P7.3 million appearing in our financial statement for 1990;
3. The expenses you approved and incurred in connection with the Dale Carnegie and Silva Mind Control Seminar;

4. The P3.7 million miscellaneous expenses appearing in our financial statement; and

5. Your reasons for renewing our service contract with Ultra.^[6]

Dr. Maquiling submitted his explanatory letter dated 11 April 1991 inviting attention to PTS Finance Manager's Report. On 15 April 1991, Dr. Maquiling had a thirty (30) minute conversation with Soriano at the latter's instance. No further related proceedings were undertaken before Dr. Maquiling received a letter-notice dated 8 June 1991 informing him that the PTS Executive Committee approved Soriano's findings and recommendations calling for his dismissal effective immediately, without any retirement benefits.^[7]

Despite Soriano's instruction for him not to report for work, Dr. Maquiling manifested, through a letter to the OIC-Executive Director, his intention to continue performing his duties as Deputy Executive Director. Dr. Maquiling continued to report for work at the PTS daily. In the meantime, he elevated his case to the PTS Board of Directors through a memorandum dated 28 June 1991 which sought to point out the illegality of his dismissal from office and prayed for a resolution upholding his position.^[8]

On 17 July 1991, Dr. Maquiling, protesting non-payment of his salary for the period of 15 July 1991, wrote the OIC Finance Department and formally demanded the release of his earned wages. PTS reacted through Soriano by informing Dr. Maquiling that there are no wages forthcoming inasmuch as the latter's service had been terminated for cause since 7 June 1991.^[9]

In an effort to exhaust the remedies within PTS, Dr. Maquiling wrote the President of PTS a letter dated 5 August 1991 saying, among others: my counsels agree with me that if your Board does not act on my 28 June 1991 Memorandum within fifteen (15) days from receipt of this letter, such omission will mean a confirmation of Soriano's notice of my alleged termination from the service a dismissal which is referable to the proper outside forum."^[10]

Receiving no response from the PTS, Dr. Maquiling stopped reporting for work at the PTS in the last week of September 1991. Then, on 10 October 1991, Dr. Maquiling filed his complaint with the Labor Arbiter.

After considering the evidence adduced by the parties, the Labor Arbiter rendered a decision ordering PTS to immediately reinstate Dr. Maquiling to the position of Deputy Executive Director or its equivalent in rank and pay, without loss of seniority rights inclusive of all benefits attached to said position at the time of his dismissal, and to pay Dr. Maquiling backwages computed from the time of his dismissal on 7 June 1991 until his actual reinstatement but not to exceed three (3) years at the rate of thirteen thousand nine hundred pesos (P13,900.00) per month or three hundred seventy-eight thousand seven hundred seventy-five pesos (P378,775.00).^[11] He likewise ordered PTS to pay Dr. Maquiling five hundred thousand pesos (P500,000.00) as moral damages and one hundred thousand pesos (P100,000.00) as exemplary damages and to pay attorney's fees equivalent to ten (10%) percent of the total amount due the complainant.

Upon appeal by PTS to the NLRC, the Commission upheld the decision of the labor arbiter and dismissed the appeal.^[12] However, PTS appealed the decision to the Court of Appeals which reversed the decisions of the NLRC and Labor Arbiter by ordering the dismissal of the complaint and declaring that his dismissal from employment as legal and valid. It, however, ordered PTS to pay Dr. Maquiling the amount of ten thousand pesos (P10,000.00) as damages or indemnity for violation of his right to procedural due process and separation pay in the amount of one hundred fifty-nine thousand eight hundred fifty pesos (P159,850.00) in the interest of social justice.^[13] Hence, this petition for review on certiorari.

Dr. Maquiling argues that the appellate court should have applied the case of Serrano v. NLRC^[14] which was decided on 27 January 2000 since the assailed decision of the appellate court was promulgated subsequently on 28 March 2000. He avers that PTS must pay him full backwages from the time his employment was terminated on 7 June 1991 up to the time the decision becomes final.^[15] In addition to backwages, he also prays that he be awarded separation pay for every year of service, at the rate of one month pay for every year of service,^[16] as well as thirteenth month pay, sick leave and vacation leave and all monetary benefits including moral damages and attorney's fees.^[17] Further, Dr. Maquiling points out that the appellate court gravely abused its discretion by changing the rules on pleadings before the administrative body since it considered the position paper of PTS though unverified.^[18] PTS should have considered the twenty-three (23) years of service of petitioner^[19] and should not have ruled that the dismissal from service of Dr. Maquiling was for just cause.^[20] He further contends that the appellate court did not show any degree of clarity of causal connection between Dr. Maquiling's acts and the supposed damage to PTS.^[21]

Moreover, Dr. Maquiling raised in his petition that the appellate court, which agreed with the findings of the labor arbiter and the NLRC that the twin requirements of notice and hearing are wanting, erred in adopting an abandoned doctrine by merely imposing a fine of ten thousand pesos (P10,000.00) against PTS and in disregarding the present doctrine on termination of employment and monetary benefits accorded by law to Dr. Maquiling, and in concluding with grave abuse of discretion that the dismissal of Dr. Maquiling, who had served PTS for twenty-three (23) years, was for just cause.^[22]

In its Comment^[23] dated 9 October 2000, PTS contends that the dismissal of Dr. Maquiling was based on a just cause, supported as it was by the evidence, law and jurisprudence. The termination of Dr. Maquiling's employment was allegedly due to loss of trust and confidence.^[24] It avers that for gross mismanagement, for acts inimical to the interest of PTS, and also for reason that PTS has lost its trust and confidence in him, PTS terminated his services without any retirement benefit.^[25]

PTS, however, alleges that it complied with the two-notice rule required for termination of employment. According to PTS, the first notice was sent by Soriano to Dr. Maquiling by means of confidential memorandum^[26] dated 2 April 1991 requiring him to explain in writing, within five days from notice, the matters stated therein. Dr. Maquiling honored the first notice by submitting on 11 April 1991 a written reply to Soriano. The second notice which allegedly informed Dr. Maquiling of the decision to terminate his employment, stating reasons therefor, was sent to him by Soriano on 8 June 1991.^[27]

A review of the factual milieu of the instant labor controversy and the jurisprudence on the subject leads us to modify the assailed decision of the appellate court.

We agree with the appellate court that Dr. Maquiling was dismissed from employment for just cause consisting of loss of trust and confidence. The records reveal that he was Deputy Executive Director of PTS, a responsible position, at the time of his dismissal. The following defines the extent of the power and responsibility attached to the position he occupied:

1. Directs, supervises, coordinates, and controls the general administrative, finance and regional operations of PTS.
2. Formulates and executes plans and policies for operations activities under his charge.
3. Signs corresponden[ce] and other documents relative to operational activities under his charge, within specified limits.
4. Authorizes the hiring, promotion, transfer and termination of all PTS personnel below the supervisory level in accordance with the policies prescribed by the Board of Directors.
5. Reports regularly to the Executive Director on the individual operations and activities of departments and branches under his charge.
6. Executes and administers directives issued by the Executive Director.
7. Assists the Executive Director in the preparation of the [annual] budget and operational plan of the Society.
8. Prepares and submits reports required by the Board of Directors, government entities and other interested parties.
9. Performs related functions as may be assigned by the Executive Director.^[28]

PTS imputes the delayed GSIS remittances to Dr. Maquiling's failure to follow his duties as prescribed by law. The records disclose that Dr. Maquiling was aware of the problem but he failed to give priority thereto. This non-remittance was partially brought about by a Guideline on the Releasing of Checks he issued, which placed the GSIS account as a last priority.^[29] The security of workers' compensation was undermined by his act which patently transgressed the constitutional injunction that workers should be afforded full protection in their employment. Subsumed in said mandate is the protection of the right to workmen's compensation to which a lowly worker may be entitled. To rule otherwise would frustrate the policy that the State shall promote and develop a tax-exempt employees' compensation program whereby employees and their dependents, in the event of work-connected disability or death, may promptly secure adequate income benefit, and medical or related benefits.^[30]

On the other hand, we are inclined to attribute the P7.3 million deficit in PTS' 1990 financial statements to Dr. Maquiling's failure to consider the realities of the financial condition of the institution. Dr. Maquiling even aggravated such omission by insisting on the salary increase of both managerial and non-managerial personnel despite the financial conundrum that puzzles the future fiscal stability of PTS. The records show that he made representations during the Board meeting that sufficient funds existed to meet the salary upgrading despite the presence of financial strains.^[31] Such a course of action falls short of his responsibility to safeguard the financial stability of the institution he leads. Said responsibility cannot be outweighed by any magnanimous motive for the institutional existence will be rendered illusory if the very foundation of its financial stability will be ignored. We are solicitous of the primordial goal sought to be achieved by Dr. Maquiling but the wisdom of the timing is questionable.

The renewal of the Ultra Clean contract with the PTS for janitorial services also evinces a bad managerial move on the part of Dr. Maquiling. By reason of the contract, PTS was dragged into a labor controversy for illegal dismissal which eventually made it liable for backwages and differentials to employees of Ultra Clean.^[32] Worse is the renewal of the said contract despite the unsatisfactory performance of Ultra Clean without the approval of the Board or the Executive Committee or any subsequent request for its ratification. The unnecessary expending of funds in the administration and operation of PTS is evidently an act of mismanagement which could bring PTS to severe financial distress. These acts if committed by a responsible officer wither the trust and confidence lodged in him by his superior and may serve as a valid and sufficient basis to impose disciplinary sanctions to an erring employee which may even result to dismissal from employment if the gravity of the offense warrants as in the instant case.

Recent decisions of this Court distinguish the treatment of managerial from that of rank-and-file personnel insofar as the application of the doctrine of loss of trust and confidence is concerned. Thus, with respect to rank-and-file personnel, loss of trust and confidence as ground for valid dismissal requires proof of involvement in the alleged events in question and that mere uncorroborated assertions and accusations by the employer will not suffice.^[33] But as regards a managerial employee, mere existence of a basis for believing that such employee has breached the trust of his employer would suffice for his dismissal.^[34]

After careful perusal of the factual backdrop of the case, we rule that Dr. Maquiling was indeed validly dismissed for just cause. However, PTS was remiss in its duty to observe procedural due process in effecting the dismissal of Dr. Maquiling.

Under this second requirement, two notices must be sent to the employee who is the subject of an investigation for acts which may warrant his eventual dismissal from employment. The notices required before an employee may be validly dismissed are: (a) a written notice served on the employee specifying the grounds for termination and giving the employee reasonable opportunity to explain his/her side; (b) a hearing or conference wherein the employee, with the assistance of counsel if so desired, is given opportunity to respond to the charge, present his evidence or rebut evidence presented against him/her; and (c) written notice of termination served on the employee indicating that upon due consideration of all the circumstances, grounds have been established to justify termination.^[35]
