DECISION

BUENA, J.:

Before us is a petition for review on certiorari which seeks to reverse the decision^[1] of public respondent Court of Appeals in C.A. G.R. No. 24139, dated 22 January 1993, and the resolution^[2] of the Court of Appeals, dated 05 November 1993, denying petitioners' motion for reconsideration.

The dispositive portion of the assailed decision^[3] of the appellate court reads as follows:

"WHEREFORE, in the light of the foregoing disquisitions, the petition for certiorari is granted and the assailed orders of the Regional Trial Court of Negros Oriental in Civil Case 139-B, are hereby nullified and set aside. The writ of prohibition is hereby issued and respondent judge or whoever acts in his behalf in RTC to which this case is assigned is enjoined from taking further action in Civil Case No. 139-B, except to order its immediate dismissal with prejudice.

SO ORDERED."

As culled from the records, the antecedents of the case, are as follows:

Petitioners and private respondents are co-owners of Arnaiz Hermanos, a hacienda consisting of several hectares of land devoted to the production and raising of sugar cane, coconut and other crops. Portions of the hacienda also serve as fishpond, salt bed and prawn farm.

Francisca Ponce De Leon along with the other private respondents owns around 64.485976% of the property while petitioners represent a total of 35.5140232%.^[4]

By virtue of a special power of attorney^[5], the co-owners appointed petitioner Jose Garcia, (GARCIA for short) as administrator of the property.

Petitioner Garcia, who owns a 5.91900305% share^[6] and who acted as attorney-in-fact of the co-owners, wielded almost absolute power over the property. Among other acts, he decided on the crops planted; the investments made; the equipment used; the purchases done; the produce sold and the quantity, price and time to sell the produce. Moreover, he exercised full control over the funds of the co-ownership, including the distribution thereof to the co-owners.

At the outset, the co-owners took Garcia's words hook, line and sinker due to the trust and confidence reposed on the latter. With the passage of time, however, the trust and confidence waned; the respondents started to entertain doubts on the manner Garcia administered the property. The respondents wondered why they received only so much when, in their belief, they were entitled to receive more. Likewise, they questioned the manner of distribution of profits prompting the respondents to hire the services of Petronilo S. Santos & Co., a Manila based accounting firm, to conduct an audit^[7] of the books of the co-ownership.

The audit resulted to a startling discovery^[8] of disbursements, expenditures, withdrawal of funds, deposits and investments which were improperly made and thus, prejudicial to the interest of the co-owners.

As a consequence of these findings, the co-owners, by virtue of resolutions^[9] approved by the majority, decided to manage and operate the farm themselves, including its financial matters, and required Garcia to render a fair, true and complete accounting of the transactions entered into by him as administrator.

Eventually, the rift borne by the discovery provoked the co-owners to terminate the co-ownership and divide the property among themselves.

On 17 November 1990, after having agreed on the mechanics of the partition, the petitioners and private respondents, either personally or through duly authorized representatives, convened on November 17, 1990 and partitioned the property owned in common^[10].

In the assemblage, private respondents moved that Garcia be made to account for the proceeds of the operation of the farm during his incumbency as administrator. Petitioner Garcia, however, walked out of the meeting. Notwithstanding Garcia's absence, the co-owners declared the existence of a quorum and implemented the resolution^[11] which earlier revoked the special power of attorney executed in favor of Garcia.

By a majority vote of the co-owners, an action for accounting, docketed as Civil Case 9803^[12] was filed against Garcia before the Regional Trial Court (RTC) of Negros Oriental.

On 23 November 1990, petitioner Garcia filed a complaint for partition^[13] with ex parte appointment of receiver, docketed as Civil Case No. 139-B, before the RTC of Bais City, Branch XLV, the lone branch in said city.

On 26 November 1990, herein petitioners filed an urgent ex parte motion for appointment of receiver,^[14] which failed to contain a notice of hearing. No copy of the motion was sent to the private respondents.

A day later, the presiding judge of RTC Branch XLV issued an order^[15] dated 27 November 1990,^[16] appointing lawyer Enrico Garcia as receiver, without any hearing subject however to the filing of a P30,000.00 bond as fixed by the court.

On 28 November 1990, lawyer Enrico Garcia complied with the order of the court by filing the necessary bond^[17] and on the same date took his oath of office as receiver.^[18]

Private respondents, through Ana Maria A. Diago filed with the same court a motion^[19] for inhibition and recall and/or annulment of all orders issued in connection with Civil Case No. 139-B.

Eventually, lawyer Enrico Garcia, as receiver, filed on December 10, 1990, a motion ex parte^[20] in Civil Case 139-B, which sought to grant him authority to withdraw funds from the bank. The motion failed to contain a notice of hearing and private respondents were not furnished with a copy thereof.

In an order^[21] dated 06 December 1990, the judge denied the motion for inhibition filed by the respondents.

On 20 December 1990, the lower court denied private respondents' motion for annulment of the orders and granted the ex parte motion of the receiver, Enrico Garcia, dated 03 December 1990, which authorized the latter to withdraw the amount of P264,321.74 from the Far East Bank and Trust Company, Dumaguete City and/or from the Bank of the Philippine Islands, Bais City, Negros Oriental.

Subsequently, in an order^[22] dated 30 January 1991, the lower court granted anew the ex parte motion of the receiver Enrico Garcia, which in effect, empowered the latter to withdraw funds for the operation of the co-ownership property; to sell sugar, molasses, copra, salt and fish products and to deposit the proceeds of the sale with the bank.

On 24 July 1991, the parties entered into a compromise agreement^[23] in Civil Case No. 9979 and submitted the same to the court for approval.

The compromise agreement, reads in full thus:

"COMPROMISE AGREEMENT

Comes now the parties duly assisted by their respective counsel unto this Honorable Court hereby submit the following compromise agreement:

1. That plaintiffs and private defendants hereby agree that the funds of the co-ownership Arnaiz Hermanos which were

2. All other funds of the co-ownership wherever they may be found shall likewise be withdrawn only upon the authority and signatures of Mr. Jose A. Garcia and Ana Maria A. 5. Once the aforementioned properties is (sic) distributed to the respective parties in accordance with their respective shares, each party is free to manage, administer and enjoy his respective share;
6. The parties shall exert earnest efforts in arriving at a final settlement and partition of all the other properties, whether real or personal owned in common by them. In this connection, the parties hereby agree that they shall endeavour to achieve complete settlement of the co-ownership within 30 days from the signing of this agreement; Parties therefore set the following schedules for conference on August 03, 10, 24 and 31, 1991 in the morning and afternoon at the office of the SDD & Co.
7. Pending final winding up of the affairs of the co-ownership, the parties hereby agree that whatever properties remaining of the co-ownership shall be jointly administered by Ana Maria A. Diago and Jose A. Garcia;
8. All other claims and counterclaims of the parties in connection with the above-entitled case are hereby waived.

Accordingly, the compromise agreement was approved by the RTC of Dumaguete City, Branch XLII, in an order,^[24] dated 25 July 1991, the dispositive portion of which declares:

"That the aforestated compromise agreement having been executed in accordance with law and not contrary to public policy and moral, the same is hereby approved and judgment is hereby rendered in accordance herewith without pronouncement as to cost.

Herein private respondents then brought before the Court of Appeals a petition for certiorari and prohibition with prayer for preliminary injunction and/or temporary restraining order, docketed as C.A. G.R. No. 24139, which sought to annul or set aside the lower court's orders dated 27 November 1990; 06 December 1990; 20 December 1990 and 30 January 1991, in Civil Case 139-B.

In granting the petition for certiorari and prohibition filed by private respondent, the Court of Appeals declared^[25]:

"After carefully reviewing the records of this case, We perceive the following important data: (1) that ex parte motions are mere scraps of papers (Manila Surety Co. vs. Bath Construction & Co., L-16636, June 24, 1965) and should not have been acted upon; (2) that a motion to dismiss Civil Case No. 139-B is so important as to be wrongfully ignored by mere ex parte motions; (3) that a question of inhibition involves an important question of faith in the administration of justice as to be easily ignored or cast aside; (4) that the absence of notice or opportunity to be heard violates the fundamental principle of due process and constitutes grave abuse of discretion by the respondent judge amounting to lack of or excess of jurisdiction; and (5) that since partition of the property of the decedent's 'Hacienda' has already been agreed upon by the parties, Civil
