FOREWORD	xvi
EXECUTIVE SUMMARY	xviii
KEY FINDINGS	xxi
POLICY RECOMMENDATIONS	xiv
CHAPTER 1:
RECENT ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENTS
IN AFRICA AND MEDIUM-TERM PROSPECTS	1
AFRICA'S GROWTH PERFORMANCE	5
Expansion is set to continue	5
Private consumption and investment are the key growth drivers	7
Growth is expected to increase across all economic groups	9
Growth varies between subregions	9
Employment is yet to pick up	11
Inflationary pressure stays subdued	12
Most African currencies will continue to depreciate	15
Fiscal deficits are narrowing	18
The falling oil price will affect current accounts	21
International reserves among oil exporters remain high but are deteriorating	22
Private inflows are rising	24
Private equity is an opportunity	27
African countries with higher savings make fewer domestic investments	29
Risks and uncertainties	30
AFRICA'S TRADE PERFORMANCE	32
The merchandise trade boom is tapering off	32
Services trade is changing its composition	36
Net—Africa exports goods but increasingly imports services	41
CONCLUSIONS	42

CHAPTER 2: STRUCTURAL CHANGE AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT	45
GROWTH AND STRUCTURAL CHANGE UNDER SHIFTING POLICY PARADIGMS	48
SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT AND STRUCTURAL CHANGE: A BI-DIRECTIONAL LINK	56
Poverty and inequality	56
Demography and urbanization	58
Africa’s rapid urbanization without industrialization	59
Building an educated and healthy workforce	60
Constraints of primary education	61
Improved secondary education, but not enough for the labour market	63
Transition from school to work	63
Progress in health is essential for labour productivity and industrialization	63
Potential productivity gains stymied by weak education and health care	64
Employment in manufacturing and services as an outcome of structural change	64
Employment-to-population and participation ratios increase in Africa	66
Weak labour productivity is curtailing Africa’s employment prospects...	66
... which can fuel economic and social instability	66
Informality still drives jobs	66
TRADE AND EMPLOYMENT	68

CHAPTER 3: THEORIES AND EXPERIENCE	73
THEORETICAL UNDERPINNINGS OF TRADE’S BENEFITS IN INDUSTRIALIZATION	74
A SELECTIVE TRADE POLICY FRAMEWORK	76
Keeping up with the leaders	80
Regional integration is still a triumph of hope over experience	81
Towards a coordinated and harmonized trade for industrial development in Africa: United we stand, divided we fall	82
TRADE POLICY COHERENCE AND SELECTIVITY IN A SHRINKING POLICY SPACE	84
Coherence needs to be beefed up	84
Getting everyone on board: the political economy of trade policy reform	86
Policy space is narrowing	88
CONCLUSIONS	91

CHAPTER 4: REPOSITIONING AFRICA IN GLOBAL VALUE CHAINS AND FACILITATING TRADE IN INTERMEDIATES AND SERVICES	97
GVCS AND INDUSTRIALIZATION	98
STRENGTHENING PARTICIPATION IN VALUE CHAINS	101
African countries show high participation in GVCs, though at low rungs	101
Regional chains are a much-needed step towards global chains	102
The development and promotion of local and regional agro-food chains are very promising and lucrative agro-business ventures	105
Intra-African trade in intermediates offers broader scope for regional chains to emerge	109
Countries have shown their determination to join value chains	110
THE PERSISTENCE OF BARRIERS TO TRADE	113
Key supply-side constraints	113
Trade policy constraints	115
AFRICA'S TRADE IN INTERMEDIATE PRODUCTS	118
Imported intermediates have surged but without boosting Africa's competitiveness	118
Intermediate exports have increased vigorously, but remain dominated by mining and resource-based manufactures	121
SERVICES IN AFRICA'S STRUCTURAL TRANSFORMATION	125
Services provide essential inputs to most other businesses	125
The services sector can attract much needed foreign investments and private equity finance into Africa	125
Services have the potential to be an engine of job creation	125
Across Africa, growth in services is strongly correlated with growth in GDP and growth in manufacturing value added	126
Services are increasingly important in African economies	126
Some African services subsectors have seen a particularly strong growth, though not always being translated into better services for local firms	129
The services sector is an avenue for economic transformation, as not all countries have a competitive edge in manufacturing	129

CHAPTER 5: GETTING TRADE AGREEMENTS TO ADVANCE AFRICA'S INDUSTRIALIZATION	141
FAILURE OF PREFERENTIAL SCHEMES TO BROADLY ENHANCE INDUSTRIALIZATION	143
Economies offering trade preferences have absorbed a large share of Africa's exports, but such schemes have done little to help Africa industrialize	143
Reducing exclusion lists and finding a balance between productive capacity and rules of origin	146
Trade preferences alone cannot build RVCs, though they can support a favourable environment	148
REINFORCING TRADING RELATIONSHIPS WITHIN THE CONTINENT AS A STRONGER BASIS FOR INDUSTRIALIZING	149
The TFTA would not exclusively stimulate industrial production of big players	149
Boosting intra-African trade and its industrial content through CFTA	151
CFTA must be accompanied by ambitious complementary reforms, notably trade facilitation	151
Enhancing intra-industry trade and opportunities to move up the value chain through CFTA	152
NEED FOR AFRICA-WIDE STRATEGIC TRADE POLICIES WHEN OPENING TO THE REST OF THE WORLD	155
Initial asymmetric protection structures in the economic partnership agreements lead to uneven gains	155
Africa must be strategic in setting its common external tariff (CET) structures to avoid undermining its regional integration process and Africa's industrialization	156
To what extent is trade policy space limited by trade agreements?	156
IMPORTANCE OF "SMART SEQUENCING" OF TRADE AGREEMENTS	159
Africa is likely to be hurt by mega-regional trade agreements...	159
... unless it gets CFTA going	160
CFTA must be accompanied by bold reforms	160
CONCLUSION	163

End Notes	166
CHAPTER 6: TOWARDS A SELECTIVE TRADE POLICY FRAMEWORK FOR INDUSTRIALIZING AFRICA	169
KEY THEMES	170
Translating the gains from the recent past into the foundations for a sustainable future	170
Getting trade and other policies to work together	171
Joining global and regional value chains	171
Reversing the wrong-way trend in trade in intermediates	173
Trade in services: more important for some countries than others	173
Using trade agreements to Africa's advantage	173
POLICY RECOMMENDATIONS	174
End Notes	178
