Port of Ningbo Introduction

Port of Ningbo is one of the most important and busiest ports in mainland China. The port is at the crossroad of the north-south shipping route and the important waterway of the Yangtze River. The port comprises several ports which are Beilun (seaport), Zhenhai (estuary port) and old Ningbo harbor (inland river port), Daxie and Chuanshan.

With its excellent natural conditions, such as deep water, it has shipping routes to 100 countries and regions in the world and connects to more than 600 ports worldwide.

In 2012, Ningbo - Zhoushan port cargo throughput exceeded 744 million tons. The 16.17 million TEU of container throughput last year indicates that it has been growing consecutively for 10 years at an extraordinary average rate that ranks as the world's first.

In 2012, Ningbo port's total annual sales volume of import and export reach 197.578 billion;

Import $73.38 billion

Export $124.19 billion
