Guide to Support the Implementation of the Global Women's Safety Framework

ENDING VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN SECTION
UN WOMEN,
With support of Unilever
May 2019

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The development of the Guide to Support the Implementation of the Global Women's Safety Framework would not have been possible without:

The courage of many women and girls living in rural spaces who have shared their experiences of violence and their insights on how to ensure women's safety in all spaces in the tea sector, and support of those men who stand with women to end gender-based violence.

Leadership from Unilever, including Unilever Tea Kenya (UTK), and Hindustan Unilever and other producers of large, medium and small-size tea companies, and tea associations working on their initiatives to prevent and respond to sexual harassment and other forms of violence against women and girls on estates and in smallholder farms.

The commitment and input of agency representatives, with technical advice from: Lizzette Soria, Wangechi Grace, Karin Fueg, Anju Pandey; Salina Wilson (UN Women), and inputs received from members of the Global Team at Unilever, including: Katja Freiwald, Rachel Cowburn Walden, Winfridah Nyakwara, and Daleram Gulia.

We acknowledge the technical inputs made to the Guide by Business for Social Responsibility (BSR).

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 ABOUT THE GUIDE TO SUPPORT IMPLEMENTATION OF THE GLOBAL WOMEN'S SAFETY FRAMEWORK

In December 2018, UN Women in collaboration with Unilever, a range of producers in the tea sector, and working in partnerships with government authorities, tea companies, associations, and women, youth, and community groups in rural spaces launched a Global Women's Safety Framework in Rural Spaces: Informed by Experience in the Tea Sector (GWSF).¹

The GWSF aims to ensure that "all women and girls are socially, economically, and politically empowered in rural spaces that are free from sexual harassment and other forms of violence."

To achieve this goal, a comprehensive approach to prevent and respond to sexual harassment and other forms of violence against women and girls in workplaces and public spaces is needed, including in four main areas of action.

The GWSF includes a section for producers with guidance on how to implement the first action area: locally owned women's safety solutions identified (See GWSF section three). It outlines various steps that producers can take to diagnose the issues, establish partnerships, and design initiatives/ programs. The GWSF also provides links to practical tools to help producers get started on their journey.

This Guide aims to provide further support to producers on how to practically implement the other three areas of the GWSF. For a detailed description of the four areas of action, see pages 18 to 20 of the GWSF.
