ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This report is based on a consultation organized by the department of Gender, Women and Health (GWH) of the World Health Organization (WHO), in collaboration with the Department of HIV/AIDS (HIV), WHO in Geneva from January 16–18, 2006. The meeting was supported with funds from the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SIDA) and the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA).

The WHO would like to thank each of the meeting participants for sharing their vast experience and valuable work in the areas of HIV testing and counselling and violence against women. This report was prepared by Suzanne Maman and Elizabeth King of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, United States of America, Avni Amin and Claudia Garcia-Moreno from GWH, and Donna Higgins and Amolo Okero from HIV at WHO. This report summarizes discussions held at the meeting and resulting conclusions. It does not represent official WHO policy.
