INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the Training guide on HIV prevention outreach to injecting drug users (IDUs)! This package is designed to help organize workshops that orient and train public health policy-makers, programme developers, programme managers, implementers and field workers in outreach to injecting drug users. The workshops draw on experience from training materials and tools used in different parts of the developing and developed world. The approach advocated in these module aims to contribute significantly to the prevention of HIV transmission among injecting drug users. As such, the workshops you are going to facilitate are an integral part of a renewed global and national commitment to HIV prevention.

The training package embraces four workshop modules that are arranged in a sequence to assist the training of a wide range of participants, depending on their training needs:

► Orientation workshop: Orientation to outreach among injecting drug users is a half-day workshop for decision-makers, AIDS/drugs/health ministerial/departmental staff, politicians, researchers, programme developers and outreach trainers. This module provides evidence for the effectiveness of outreach programmes and assists decision-makers in planning the introduction and development of outreach programmes.

► Programme development workshop: Developing outreach programmes for HIV prevention among injecting drug users is a one-day workshop for programme developers and outreach trainers. This module provides assistance to those individuals who are interested or involved in developing outreach programmes and may be the initial managers of such programmes.

► Programme management workshop: Managing outreach programmes among injecting drug users is a four-day workshop for programme managers, outreach trainers and outreach managers. This module is designed to be used with people who have never managed an outreach programme. It can also be useful as additional training for current managers and outreach field supervisors.
